10,000 Planes Per Night May Raid Germany

LONDON, June 9.—(CP)—Air Chief Marshal A. T. Harris suggested today that 10,000 bombers a night soon might fly over Germany and that many might fly directly from America "with formidable bomb loads."

Speaking in a news reel, the commander in chief of the bomber command declared the present means of raids on Germany but preliminary warnings for terrific punishment in store for Japan.

"One day in the near future, it may not be impossible to have 10,000 bombers over Germany in one night, including hundreds which could fly direct from America with a formidable bomb load, though of course this is only a surmise," he said.

Despite the massive raids on Cologne and Hamburg, Harris said, "I am sure that heavy bombers will be tried."

"Some people argue that heavy bombing will not win the war," he said. "To them I answer that it has been tried, and it has failed."

"The bomber command is determined to win the war," he said. "The bomber command is determined to win the war."

The bomber command declared the raids will continue at a dramatic increase in scale and said when the United States army air corps gets permanently into action, three or four times the number of bombers which raided Cologne will be used.

If the goods are not allowed to flow freely through the world, Britain must use the device known as bilateral trading agreements. She will import only from nations which export goods to her in return.

Many Canucks Marry Overseas

LONDON, June 9.—(CP)—The Canadian army overseas has moved to cut down lightning courtships between Canadian soldiers and British girls, and at the same time reduce the proportion of unhappy marriages.

Drawing attention to the fact 3,500 Canadian soldiers have married overseas since the first batch of Canadian soldiers landed in Italy, Canadian military headquarters pointed to the army "marriage order" passed last November.

It stipulates that private and non-commissioned officers must make provision for saving $50 before taking the wives and must wait three months after receiving their commanding officer's permission to do so.

Also a factor leading to the framing of the order was the girl back home, said the authorities. Many overseas weddings don't last, have brought heartbreak letters from soldiers' girls waiting in Canada.

F.D.R. To Give Facts On Tire, Gas Shortages

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP)—A committee of congressmen named yesterday that President Roosevelt is going to give the people some facts and reasons for the rubber shortage and the gasoline shortage.

The committee, headed by Senator Charles McNary, will also assemble the facts himself.

And until Mr. Roosevelt makes his report, presumably in another first-hand visit to the tire and gasoline shortage, the committee will be in the President's thoughts that he should not get too excited or worried.

Kleberg is chairman of a committee of members of the House of Representatives who want a wider rationing of gasoline deferred until it is demonstrated that such a step is essential to the war effort.

WATCHED MIDWAY BATTLE FROM SEA

Proot Describes Haroc As Jap Carriers Blasted

Bombers Defied Terrific Ack-Ack Barrage To Seal Doom Of Nippon Warships

The first eyewitness account of the Battle of Midway came yesterday from a naval aviator who, floating in the sea, saw a line of burning Japanese ships pass by. The story was related by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the United States Pacific fleet.

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
PEARL HARBOR, June 9.—(AP)—From a 25-year-old torpedo plane pilot of the Pacific fleet came one of the most amazing eye-witness accounts of a major naval engagement in the history of sea warfare.

The pilot had what veterans naval officers termed "a fish eye view" of operations during an attack on three Japanese carriers participating in the battle of Midway. For he watched the heavy wrought when American dive-bombers and torpedoes blasted at these huge targets—observing from the surface of the sea itself while clinging to his seat and covering his head with a seat from the plane.

He covered his head to avoid detection. The pilot is Knigh G. H. Gay, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gay of Houston, Tex. Gay is recuperating today from minor wounds suffered when his squadron met heavy enemy fighter opposition while driving home a torpedo attack on one of the largest carriers in the enemy fleet early on June 4, the day the battle of Midway opened.

Only Gay of the crew of three survived the crash of his plane shortly after the launch of a torpedo at a carrier of the Kaga class. What happened thereafter is a naval epic that unfolded in the air over the sea. Gay approached the Japanese ship with his objective in mid-morning. Visibility was unlimited. Below 10 Japanese carriers, less than 10 miles extending between the first and last of the enemy ships, were screened by a considerable force of cruisers and destroyers.

Gay took stock of the astounding drama below him. Two Kaga class carriers had been taking on their aircraft. Another smaller carrier lay between them, also receiving planes that were striking the far-flung battles of Midway.

One of the larger carriers already had been hit by a single bomb, and destroyers wheeled around it, waiting to receive the wreckage. Twenty minutes later the American dive-bombers returned into view.

As the battle raged, the American planes launched a series of attacks. Gay heard his machine gunner say he had been hit. But his approach continued. Near the great Japanese carrier, Gay launched his projectile, then swung sharply over the target and sped astern as fast as his plane could carry him. Suddenly an explosive shell from a Zero fighter ripped through the Japanese bomber's fuselage. The detonation sent Gay's left leg, all simultaneously, a small bullet struck his upper left arm.

Coolly, Gay brought his heavy plane into a stall and parachuted into the sea several miles astern of the enemy carrier.

His gunner was dead, and in the emergency landing his radio man was unable to pull free.

At 11 a. m. Gay, alone, watched the last surface of his plane disappear. Now a bill of smoke billowed with him. Out of the sinking wreckage floated the bag containing the deflated rubber life raft, and a black cushion on which the bombardier knelt while waiting.

Gay figured his chances quickly and accurately. There had been reports of Japanese straining helplessly, pilots bailing out by parachute, and of machine-gunning of men in such life rafts as had floated clear of his own plane.

HID FROM FIGHTERS
Gay declined to offer himself as such a victim. He ducked under the cushion as enemy fighters whirled overhead. Not knowing the extent of his wounds, he felt reasonably safe. The bullet, which had penetrated his chest, had struck him at the spine and his trajectory, dropped in his hand.

For some reason, Gay recalled, "pulling" in my mind, I wanted a souvenir. Anyhow, I lost it. He bandaged his injured leg under the water.

Then from his fish-eye view at sea level, Gay saw two other Jap carriers hit squarely by United States bombs.

Tremendous fire burst from these vessels. Great billows of smoke streamed upward, and flames flaring from the apex in dark columns.

Several explosions sent men gushing of smoke and fire belching from the carrier at intervals, he said.

MASS OF FLAMES
As the battle feet attack ended the second Kaga class carrier was on fire from bow to stern.

Surface craft gave Gay close brushes. One enemy destroyer appeared to be driving straight at him as the spot at a sudden carrier. He thought it would run him down, but it turned out to be a suicide boat.

A heavy cruiser steamed by him as the battle feet attack ended the second Kaga class carrier was on fire from bow to stern.

As the afternoon waned, the Japanese fleet began to disintegrate. An enemy cruiser attempted to dash alongside a crippled carrier, but seemed unable to approach close enough. Gay observed the vessel but knew he had to take the wounded carrier, presumably to Seattle.

Darkness fell, and he never learned what became of them. He inflated his life raft from his carbon dioxide bottle. He said he had his bit of salt water.

Working calmly, the young pilot had to make emergency patches on several bullet holes in the rubber boat before it would sustain him. The Japanese planes were still in the air.

By the next morning, great glowing patches appeared in the sky. Gay thought these might have been the searchlights of Japanese rescue vessels seeking to pick up survivors.

There didn't seem to be much else to go, so he tried to catch a few minutes of sleep.

Toward morning, he was awakened from fitful slumber by three explosions which he believed may have been demolition charges.

Several hours after the battle, a patrol plane, on a search, spotted his rubber boat. Later the plane landed on Gay's ship.

Later, a navy doctor asked him what treatment he had for his burns and he replied: "Well, I soaked 'em in salt water for 10 hours."

LITTERED WITH RAPIDS
The surface of the battle area was littered with black Japanese life rafts, presumably used by the enemy when they abandoned ship.

Gay reported that the one carrier of the Kaga class could be listed as a "certain loss" while the other two carriers were "probable." These were later confirmed by American forces engaged in finishing off the crippled units of the Japanese fleet.

Gay's break-up at Churchill makes a Spring Official CHURCHILL, Man. June 9.—(CP)—Spring came officially to Churchill yesterday with the ice break-up in the Churchill river, two days later than a year ago.

The ice started to move at the far north end of the river, 1,000 miles from Winnipeg, at 7:05 a. m., and last night was running freely. Navigation is expected to open early in July, with the first voyage of the Fort Severn.

Slow Progress In Commons Is Rapped Sharply
OTTAWA, June 9.—(CP)—A. W. Nesbitt, Conservative member of the House of Commons last night said that slow progress by the House was indicative of a general contempt of constitutional government.

He said that the House of Commons was strong in British Columbia, which was being exposed to enemy action, people were demonstrating and nothing else would suffice.

TO ENFORCE CEILING
The prices board was watching operations of the new plan and further action would be taken if necessary to enforce ceiling prices, which now are "clearly defined."

Tricks Of Stuntmen May Reduce Air Casualties

By FRANK CAREY

BOSTON, June 9.—(AP)—Unsuccessful "suicide leapers" and successful automobile drivers may be instrumental in saving the lives of combat fliers.

Experts in aviation medicine already have determined that impact of the body, especially the head, with some solid part of the aircraft is generally the cause of death or of serious injury, even in minor accidents.

And now they are seeking to apply to aviation the following two lessons learned from those who leap out of windows, and from the drivers who crash death as the carnival crowd near:

1. Would-be suicide leapers who muffed the jump would only injure themselves. Instead of the muffled impact of diminished velocity—such as by striking an awning, a ventilator box, or a garden plot.

2. The same principle, stuntmen come through alive because, just before their cars strike a solid wall, they jump out of the car and land on the back seat of the car and lie hard against the rear of the front seat.

Is YOUR JOB extra exacting?

"FILLING prescriptions is exacting work, and long hours, but no real exertion. Yet I keep my health, my family, and my patients happy; get plenty of 'bunk' in your diet each day, and a good night's sleep. Bran Flakes every morning, they're so crisp and delicious."

WHEN you feel depressed, listless and headachy, you're almost sure to make mistakes. And, if your job is exacting, nerve-straining kind that gives you little chance for healthful exercise, you are extra liable to have these symptoms of incomplete digestion. Don't let them rob you of an alert mind and healthy body. Follow these two rules of health: (1) To get well, see your doctor; (2) To keep well, watch your habits. Keep the food waste moving promptly. But no harsh cathartics! Instead, make sure you get plenty of needed "bulk" in your diet. Start every morning with a bowl of delicious, crunchy Kellogg's Bran Flakes With Other Parts Of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help supply valuable minerals and proteins, too. And they're so good, so crisp and tempting, so out-and-out delicious, you'll want to make them a daily habit from the start. Get a package of Kellogg's Bran Flakes today. They come in two convenient sizes. In restaurants, ask for the individual package with the inner, WAXTITE, sealed bag. Bogus Air Aces To Be Released: Plan To Enlist

OTTAWA, June 9.—(CP)—Two Detroit youths who represented themselves as members of the Royal Canadian Air Force will be released today, Assistant Secretary R. M. Laidlaw said yesterday after receiving a telegram from Major Kulejowski, of the Polish mission in Canada, clearing the record of one of the boys, Robert Poynter, 26.

Major Kulejowski said Poynter's story about receiving an honorable discharge from the Canadian forces was authentic.

Poynter and his companion, Kelly Albert, 21, told Laidlaw they wished to continue their hitchhiking to San Diego, Calif., where Poynter said he hoped to enlist in the United States air corps, and Albert in the paratroops. They said they believed enlistment on the west coast would "get them overseas faster."

It is not unlikely that the Japanese would be glad if the United Nations fleet would expose itself by venturing into the waters around the Japanese-held islands. Strategy would dictate that the United Nations fleet of power has been heavily reinforced.

Safety plans with a strength 10 or more times that of ordinary planes have been developed for the use of anti-airplane airplanes when prearranged cabins require along, lightly sealed windows.

Labor Protests Alleged Discrimination Highway Work

Official Says Ottawa
Considering Preventive
Measures By Request

Charge that the Dominion government is considering measures that will make it impossible for United States contractors to employ Canadian labor at U.S. comparative wage rates on work being done within Canada has been filed by Carl E. Berg, general representative, Laborers' International Union, and the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

I Saw Today

That he had forwarded a protest by telegraph to Lord Humphrey Mitchell, minister of labor, and was pleading for prevention of this "discrimination" while it would react to the detriment of Canadian labor.

Text of Mr. Berg's wire is as follows:

"In the matter of general labor on the Alaska highway and similar projects in Canada where American contractors operate, well-founded rumors circulating indicate that as a result of employers' representations and lobbying for American contractors to employ Canadian labor, American comparative wage rates on work being done within Canada it is most evident that the intent and purpose of Canadian employers is to create a reservoir of unemployed Canadian labor to the end that they will continue to maintain economic control over the unemployed workers and maintain unlimited numbers of low paid work-

Reserve Army Men Reveal Interest

Renewed interest in the Reserve army is indicated by a number of applications for permission to attend summer camp. It was learned Tuesday.

Under the regulations only 15 days training of Reserve army personnel is permitted at camp. The first camp will be held at local headquarters. However, according to an announcement today, personnel of units may remain in camp longer than the 15 days, but the additional time will have to be without expense to the public.

Owing to a shortage of cooks special arrangements have been made to keep them in camp for 30 days if their services are required and are available.

The first camp of 15 days' duration will open on July 4 and will close on July 19. The larger unit will be held at both camps with 50 per cent of their strength at each camp.

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

That the present war is a world war climactically as well as geographically is brought home by the fighting of the last few days. In the stalling, choking heat of the Libyan desert the British are locked in deadly combat with the Axis foe.

Thousands of miles to the north, where winter gales still sweep the Arctic, British airmen's dauntless battle for victory, submarines and dive bombers to bring vital stores of war to the gallant Russians.

Then, down where the soft breezes cause the palm trees of enchanted isles to sway in dreamy rhythm, the peace of the coral atolls is broken by the crash of bombs and shells as the sea dogs and the sea lions fight.

Dominion Wide Health Program In Near Future

Probability of enactment in the near future of dominion legislation enabling a national program of health insurance was discussed Monday night at the annual meeting of the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association in the Macdonald hotel.

In the event of such legislation being passed, it would require the unanimous approval of all provinces. Because of war conditions many volunteering and being drafted for service, the association reported, there is a very pronounced apprehension shortage in the drug business in Alberta.

A great number of druggists in country districts have been forced to close their stores because of the lack of assistants, it was stated.

President M. J. Warner was in the chair during the early part of the meeting and later the new president N. A. Farrow of Calgary presided.

ELECTED MONDAY

Mr. Farrow was named president at the Monday morning session of the two-day conference, and O. L. Reinicke of Claresholm was appointed secretary.

At a luncheon meeting Monday noon, presentation was made of papers to 14-20, J. A. Stewart, Dunn, head of the pharmacy department of the University for many years.

Following the annual meeting, the delegates attended the annual meeting of the Alberta Retail Druggists Association.

A brief business session was held Tuesday morning, and a golf match and annual banquet and informal dance were scheduled for Tuesday afternoon and evening, to mark the close of the conference.

Alberta Insurance Agents Win Plaque

Agents of the Great West Life Assurance company for Northern Alberta were presented with a plaque as winners of the second annual international challenge contest sponsored by the company during May.

On behalf of the agents, George F. Hagelstein, manager of the Northern Alberta branch, received a beautiful plaque presented by D. E. Kilgour, Winnipeg, agency assistant of the company, at a special banquet at the Macdonald hotel Monday night.

The Northern Alberta branch held all branches in Canada and the United States on the annual sales during May, on a quota basis.

The competition also runs on a national basis with the Canadian branches competing against the United States branches.

The plaque, about 12 inches long and 18 inches wide, is made of walnut, background bedecked with silver plaques.

Following words are engraved: "Great West Life Assurance Company: Second International Challenge Contest May 1942. Won by Alberta: Presented to Edmonton, Leading Canadian Agency."

Mr. Hagelstein, standing on behalf of the agents whose work during May had led to their success.

Sign In Sky Spells Doom Of Axis Trio

It signs in the sky serve as precursors of events. Herr Hitler and his henchmen may well be advised to throw in the sponge and the war may as well be listed as an allied victory.

Adorning a large portion of the western sky Monday night was a cloud formation making a perfect V, pink in color.

This V formation can only mean one thing, according to readers of the skies, namely, "Victory for the allies and doom for the Axis." It is a very pronounced apprehension shortage in the drug business in Alberta.

On the other hand it may serve a most harmful purpose if the child is not guided by its parents as to its proper use at the proper time.

The Inquiring Reporter

Should children be disallowed the use of guns at all?

MRS. ALBERT DIAMOND, housewife and mother of a boy, is like a duck of a toy. It can serve a useful purpose by being an instrument by which the child learns to live in a real gun and thus prepared for any emergency in time of war or peace.

On the other hand it may serve a most harmful purpose if the child is not guided by its parents as to its proper use at the proper time.

DELAM SOBOCHAN, bachelor, people in this world would be more sober and the world would be a more beautiful place if it should be compulsory for every adult and child were ruled, killed and children were provided with a gun, a camera, and a knife instead of guns, arrows, knives and the like.

No New Cases Of Diphtheria

No fresh cases of diphtheria have been reported at Drumheller, where four cases occurred recently, one being fatal, it was reported Tuesday by Dr. A. C. McGugan, provincial director of communicable disease, who has returned after conducting an investigation into the outbreak.

All contacts have been given prophylactic shots and all in Grades 1 to 8 in the schools which suspended classes last week will receive shots Monday. Schools outside Drumheller are not affected.

The disease situation is being closely watched in the district. Dr. McGugan said. He has submitted a preliminary report to Mr. D. W. Cross, minister of health and relief.

14-Months-Old Boy Is Killed Traffic Mishap

Robert George "Bobby" Warner, 14-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Warner, 1548 92nd street, was killed, almost instantly, when struck suddenly by a motor car near his home at 5 p.m. Monday.

Adorning a large portion of the western sky Monday night was a cloud formation making a perfect V, pink in color.

This V formation can only mean one thing, according to readers of the skies, namely, "Victory for the allies and doom for the Axis." It is a very pronounced apprehension shortage in the drug business in Alberta.

On the other hand it may serve a most harmful purpose if the child is not guided by its parents as to its proper use at the proper time.

THIRD FATALITY

The death of the Warner child marks the third fatality on city streets this year. Gary Urban, 12, was killed instantly on the Port Road at 121 avenue on April 23, and Tony Senick died several days after an accident on Kingsway last February.

The child passed away about three minutes after the arrival of Dr. W. Eadie, who then pronounced death due to a fractured skull.

The car driver stopped to make a collection at the home of Mrs. C. H. Green, 1204 92nd street, and police believe that during his stop at the house the child tumbled into the vehicle. Laidlaw drove away upon.

Stubbhorn Blaze Causes Damage Birk's Building

A stubborn considering fire that took fifteen minutes but two hours to extinguish, gutted the basement of the Birk's building under the portion occupied by Henry Birk and Sons, jewellers, at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

From the standpoint of accessibility the firemen were faced with one of the most stubborn situations in their fire-fighting history. The flames originated in the shipping room which is situated in the centre compartment of the basement.

A series of burglar-proof doors were locked by the last shipper out of the building about 10 minutes prior to the outbreak of the blaze and the flames were literally locked in while the firemen were locked out of the shipping room.

SMOKE HAZARD

Dense clouds of smoke emanating from the room soon spread through the whole basement and into the upper floors, making the task of breaking into the building one of the fire most hazardous.

Firemen found it impossible to break through the door from the rear entrance and they were repeatedly driven back by clouds of smoke. Finally, regulations were in effect, as compared to the building about 10 minutes prior to the outbreak of the blaze and the flames were literally locked in while the firemen were locked out of the shipping room.

Gasoline Sales Show Large Drop

A drop of 1,000,000 gallons or 25 per cent in gasoline sales in the province was reported for April, the first month in which federal gasoline rationing regulations were in effect, as compared to March this year when sales were unrestricted.

Total sales for April were 3,429,282 gallons as compared to 4,538,192 gallons in April, 1941.

Selfish Family Prevents Marriage

If She Continues to Support Relatives She Will Ruin, Not Help Them; They Become Parasites and Lose Self-Respect

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a boy of 23 with a good permanent job, and I am in love with a fine girl who loves me, but will not marry me because she says that she has to support her mother and sister. She has two brothers who have left home, but neither one contributes a nickel to the mother's support. Her mother is a strong, healthy woman only 50 years old, who could support herself if she would, but she won't work either out of the home or in it. When my girl comes home after a hard day's work in a store she has to help with the cooking and housework.

I can support the girl, but I cannot assume the support of her mother and sister. What can you do to solve the problem? I am a little commiserate and sympathetic. There is no reason in the world why your girl should be sacrificed to her selfish family. They should be forced to go to work and the same money should be contributed to the family's support. All I expect in return is that you and your girl should be married and live happily ever after.

You may say that sounds very good as a theory, but that it won't be hard to put it in practice. Not at all. The law enforces compulsory good and evil. Duty is not those who have no inner yearning for doing right, and who are not those who come across if they knew that they would be used for not contributing to their mother's support and held up to shame before all who know them. And all that the girl has to do is to say: "Mother, get a job. I'm getting married and will be able to give you only part of what I earn. The balance I am going to need myself in my new life."

Of course, the girl who lets herself be made the family goat isn't

McCoy Health Service

Mucous colitis is marked by three changes away from normal: First, there is an excessive secretion of mucus by the membrane which lines the colon; second, more or less abdominal pain or discomfort; and third, the patient develops various nervous symptoms.

This disturbance of the colon is found most frequently among those of the sensitive, nervous type who live in cities, belong to the upper social bracket, who are subjected to mental strain and stress, and who are in the wage group between twenty and thirty-five.

It is found more often among women than among men, and its basic cause is probably an instability of the nervous system. Any factor which causes nervousness will play upon this instability in such a way as to bring on the upset responsible for the symptoms.

These symptoms are capable of varying in the same patient from day to day. Some patients complain of an almost continuous ache or burning in the lower abdominal area; others have periods when they are free from distress, alternating with "relax" periods when there is extreme discomfort.

The usual symptom found in this disorder is abdominal pain, which is generally present in up to seventy-five percent of the cases. Some of the patients report a pain in the lower abdomen, but others do not have any definite pain, complaining chiefly of a vague, nagging sense of discomfort which keeps coming back and forth, and is usually well within the colon.

The pain is sharp and cramp-like. It is usually felt most noticeably when it is time for an intestinal movement, but it may occur when gas accumulates. Very often the passage of stool or more movement made clear that the pain will relieve the colic.

In fifty percent of the cases, the disturbance of the colon is accompanied by digestive symptoms such as flatulence, indigestion, and constipation.

BRITISH GIRLS TAKE TO SHORT HAIR.

The English office, factory or active service girl prefers a short haircut to simplify her hair-dressing problem and save precious minutes of "off duty" relaxation. Here is a type of hair-dress popular in England today. Short, neatly waved, it presents an attractive appearance both during work and pleasure hours.

As excessive gas, belching, pressure or fullness, feeling, nausea, occasional vomiting, poor appetite, and so on.

The disordered state of the colon, as seen in mucous colitis, is usually in compensation. However, the constipated state may alternate with periods of diarrhoea, during which the patient experiences the passage of several movements made almost entirely of mucus. As a general rule the excessive amount of mucus being passed is the first sign of colitis coming to the attention of the patient.

The nervous disturbances encountered are severe enough to keep the average patient miserable and upset. He generally finds that allowing himself to become overly emotional, is capable of starting a fresh episode in the colon, which in turn is followed by an increase in the nervousness. The nervous system keeps the patient discouraged, and it is probably true that some of the most discouraged patients in the world are patients who have been fighting colitis and their nerves for a year or two.

Your Baby And Mine

We must expect that children, having been cooped up in school for months, will react to their first vacation days like kids escaped from a prison. But this stage of excitation should be short-lived. There is no fun in having nothing to do except as a background for something to do. Too much leisure is as wearing and monotonous as too much work. Each is a phase of the other. So plan your children's vacation days as carefully as the busy school days.

Now is the time to harp upon music practice instead of during the winter when music may have been an overwhelming obligation. Now is the time to give the young lad some responsibility as a neighbor hood cleaner-upper, a job which every neighborhood sorely needs. Let him take the lead in introducing the 14 to 17-year-olds to the work of the farm. Many farmers would welcome a young boarder who would do the farm work, and financially, it might be a patriotic duty to take this year.

The ideal season to take your young daughter into the kitchen and show her some of your favorite recipes and let her try her hand at them. Any girl of 10 or over is capable of doing the work of the most of salad dressings, the plain cakes or cookies our limited sugar rations allow. She can be taught to put a "pot" roast on the cook.

Summer ought to be a thrilling period of trying out new ventures for which there was never time in the winter season. Instead of being a time when children get under the busy feet of their parents, it ought to be a time when they are able to make a pair of slacks or a house dress or even an apron.

There is no such thing as Anglo-Saxon race

People in America and England are not Anglo-Saxon neither are there any Anglo-Saxon people or blood in the earth according to Dr. O'Connell, of the Bureau of Statistics, Washington, D.C.

The dominating influence of our civilization is not from any one or two sources, but from many races of the earth, and those who are best able to judge, say that the predominant strain in the Celtic Anglo-Saxon strain in our blood is very light compared with it.

Here's a delicious sugarless cake which will help solve your wartime dessert problem.

CHOCOLATE COVERED SUGARLESS CAKE

Two and a quarter cups sifted cake flour, 2 3/4 teaspoons dissolved baking powder, 1 1/4 teaspoons salt, 12 cup butter or other shortening, 2 teaspoons grated orange rind, 1 cup light cream, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 2 1/2 cups milk, 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla.

Sift flour into measure add baking powder and salt, and sift together. Cream shortening with orange rind; add sugar gradually, beating well after addition. Add a quarter of the flour and beat until smooth and well blended.

Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk. Beat until smooth. Bake in two greased bachelors layer pans in moderate oven (375 F) 30 minutes or until done. Cover with chocolate chip frosting.

CHOCOLATE CHIP FROSTING

Place layers on baking sheet, having one layer topped down. Cover top with semi-sweet chocolate chips, using 2 packages. Heat in moderate oven (350 degrees F) 6 minutes. Cool until well softened. (Cake may be frosted with warm, beat only 3 minutes.) Remove from oven. Spread chocolate over bottom layer, letting chocolate harden. Spread top layer and spread as before. Then spread sides evenly.

Forks are placed to the left and knives and spoons to the right. The only exception to this is the oyster fork which is placed to the right.

EVERY TYPE OF EQUIPMENT IN USE

Inferno Rages In Sand And Sky Of Libyan War Zone

With tanks and planes, left, the war has flared again in the Libyan desert. "The biggest tanks I have seen in two years of desert warfare," was the description given by one foreign correspondent of German tanks. The R.A.F. is in heavy action near Tobruk. Centre of the four-pronged Axis drive against the British in the desert was between Ain El Gazala, 30 miles west of Tobruk, and Bir Hacheim, southeast of Tobruk. There the British have powerful artillery concentrations, such as these, centre, and according to London sources, the defenses in the rear are even more powerful than the outlying strong points. During the lull in desert warfare both sides brought up reinforcements and new equipment. The Axis is said to be using bigger tanks with very strong armor. British forces, too, have new equipment. Ever ready for possible gas attack, British have masks such as this, being placed on a soldier by a South African W.A.A.F. sergeant.

L. C. Parham, Toronto, "just couldn't believe it," when he saw a newspaper picture of his son, Robert Nelson Parham, shaking hands with the King. "I refused to believe it until my wife identified our son with the original from which the picture in the paper was taken. Our friends noticed it, too," Mr. Parham said. Flight-Sergt. Parham is a wireless air gunner in the R.C.A.F. He has been overseas since last July.

Caribbean Crisis

By Eaton K. Goldthwaite

THE STORY—Five visitors arrive at a South West Island (said to be a British possession) who are immediately arrested. They are Halsey, a detective brought in to take Bill Talcott to the States, if any irregularities were found; and June Peterson, beautiful cousin of Bill's former nonpareil. Later two more visitors are landed on the island by a smuggling skipper—Martha Swenson, a Norwegian refugee, and "Doc" MacDowell, an auditor. As the visitors are about to leave, Halsey and Talcott return to New York.

CHAPTER X

HALSEY seemed completely taken aback at Bill Talcott, studying him intently, was unable to decide whether his astonishment was feigned or real. "Back to New York?" Halsey stamped. "But I just got here—I'm to stay on as the new manager."

"You were the new manager?" Struthers said coldly. Struggling, he glanced significantly at the others. "Where is Mr. MacDowell?" he demanded.

June Peterson's ready lip manifested itself. "He's in bed recovering from a stroke. You nice people have said so many things about what's going on around here the poor man just couldn't stand it."

Faint color crept through the auditor's cheeks. "Please don't be sarcastic," he said. "This is quite a serious matter—Halsey, I thought I heard about. What happened?"

Halsey left off looking puzzled long enough to give a rapid transcription of events, ending up with "I looked in your room but couldn't find you."

"Which is only natural, since I spent the night at work," the auditor grunted. "Very well," MacDowell said, "I'll be in a couple of minutes. Halsey and Talcott, if you'll come along."

Talcott arose silently. So Struthers had been spending the night in the office, patching up his case. MacDowell had probably told him of the assertion that duplicate vouchers were on file which would put Bill Talcott in the clear. Struthers wouldn't be one to waste any time in strengthening his weak points.

Increasingly clear was the indication that Struthers was making every effort to discredit him. But why? What possible motive could the man have for such a course? Did he hope to gain, was he in a conspiracy to defraud the company? Surely as auditor he must have known about the duplicate vouchers. He must have known that the vouchers themselves were of no value; that all billing and collecting was done by the New York office; that the only money to pass through

Bill Talcott's hands was in the form of payroll checks. Yet, for Struthers' words came back to him "entirely possible you haven't told chemicals without reporting to New York—and with them a new reason for alarm. No shortage could be proved unless an actual shortage inventory was discovered."

Struthers was a conspirator, left alone on the island he could write an inventory he liked without regard for facts. Working in this way he could take Federal Chemical for his share. He would never be able to get away with it. There must be another reason something as yet unthought of; some carefully concealed motive which Struthers was prepared to carry out at any cost. The thing was deep, treacherous, and in the unfolding of it lay as yet no indication of the end. A beautiful break, Struthers had had, in the arrival of the smuggler and the two passengers. That gave him time aplenty to work unhindered while the rest of them were engaged in a battle which he fully was measuring. Were the new arrivals, the professor and the refugee, participants in the larger pattern?

Sighting, Bill Talcott sought to clear his brain of complex thoughts as he followed Struthers and Halsey into MacDowell's office.

Curious World

—By William Ferguson

Answer: Pensacola, Florida, because it has trained so many navy pilots.

MacDowell was asleep, propped up by pillows, an ice pack rakishly askew on his unkempt head. Struthers poured from the apocryphal rod beneath his mustache, and ceremoniously Struthers prodded his stomach.

"Wake up, MacDowell!" the auditor called sharply.

MacDowell swung his left in a wild arc, moaned, "Ow-saah, my head!" and sat up.

Struthers said, "Forget your head. You're to arrest Talcott on charges of fraud and embezzlement. In addition to the missing vouchers I've discovered evidence of payroll padding. I've made a transcript of evidence for you to take to New York. As soon as my survey is complete I'll send it in."

So it's payroll padding, too, is it? Bill Talcott said coldly. "I'm getting to be a dangerous character."

"You are the one that's saying it," Struthers returned with equal coldness. "MacDowell, are you going to get up?"

"Get up?" MacDowell muttered thickly. He thrust one leg over the side of the bed, caught the floor with his head, and said, "I think my neck's broken."

The auditor had crossed to the other side of the room. His lean face was wrinkled in concern. "Look here, grocer," he said. "It seems to me this could be handled in a much nicer way. So far as I know, nobody has heard Talcott's side of the story. He has an excellent record with the company. Why not give him a chance to defend himself?"

The auditor's thin lips curled. "His side of the story is in it," he said. "I don't like these scenes any better than you do. But there are regulations which I must observe. One of those regulations is that whenever a shortage occurs, the auditor is to remain in complete charge until a full inventory has been made. At the auditor's discretion, the affected unit may be thrown into bankruptcy."

Mr. Talcott believed you will agree, that those are the company regulations?"

Talcott smiled grimly. "Yes, and very convenient for what you intend to do, without a doubt."

Faint red tinged the auditor's cheeks. "Careful, Mr. Talcott," he snapped. "I'm a bonded representative of one of the largest firms in New York. Halsey knows that it's his duty to carry my report in full, together with whatever observations he deems my duty. That is absolutely clear, and I'll thank you not to make any insinuations."

Some of the seriousness of the situation seemed to have penetrated MacDowell'saching head and he stared questioningly at Talcott. Halsey, too, stared with grim eyes in an expressionless face.

"I'd like to hear your story," Halsey said.

Bill Talcott's wrath had been mounting steadily and his fingers flexed to take the ridiculous little auditor by the neck and shake some of the pompousness out of him. But that would be no good. It might afford him physical relief, but it wouldn't prove anything. He would have to stamp him further with the marks of disgrace. With tremendous effort he controlled himself.

"I haven't any story," Talcott said flatly. "I've conducted this job and discharged my responsibilities to the best of my ability. If there is any shortage, as Struthers claims, it's not of my making. As for the charge of payroll padding, that's a joke. You know damn well I've given a certain amount of money to produce a certain amount of work. We pay 40 cents a day for labor and we've got 400 men working. You can count 'em if you want to. I don't know what's behind this, but I'm beginning to get some ideas and if Struthers, or whoever is behind him, thinks I'll take it lying down, he's crazy."

A strange light flashed then in Struthers' eyes. Just the briefest revelation that Talcott had landed on the right words was evident in the dark, but at last he had struck something solid in all the haze of doubt and suspicions surrounding him. Late on the night to remember that revealing change, to remember and regret that he had uttered any word at all. For it suddenly occurred to Bill Talcott that his honor was not the only thing at stake. His very life itself was in utmost danger.
